

We are looking for volunteers for a nutritional research study that will examine changes in iron absorption with antioxidant supplementation.

Participants will be asked to consume a meal with phytic acid, complete a dietary recall, participate in taste testing, and have blood and saliva sample collection during a meal challenge.

Participation is expected to last about 3.5 hours total