33 credit hours] response was yes xVote on amendment #2 by show of hands motion fails faculty to advocate for themselves, difficult to come up with language that fits all cases: there are badges, etc.; not meant to change the way courses are counted xFollow-up question- why not use the language used in the FAR? Response- FAR may change while we want this to be overarching policy.

xQuestion on page 2 of Policy #1: the word "standard" in standard teaching load in the policy is ambiguous; response is that we do more than just teaching, and the new language more latitude; teaching part is 12 credit hours.

xQuestion- will this change the FAR? Response: not necessarily because FAR may change; if FAR changes then policy would have to be amended.

xSpoke against -standard teaching load in AAUP is that 12 credit hours is full load reduction from it for service and/or research so this policy is in conflict with AAUP

Discussion & vote related to amendment- addition to wording in the 2nd line of the 2nd page
