

Institute for the Study of Economic Growth

5

ISEG Internal Grant Opportunities

The Institute for the Study of Economic Growth (ISEG) is housed in the W. Frank Barton School of Business at Wichita State University. The University's mission is to be an essential educational, cultural, and economic driver for Kansas and the greater public good. The Barton School's mission, aligned with that of the University, is to prepare students for lifelong learning and success in the global marketplace, advance the knowledge and practice of business, and support economic growth through research, outreach, and knowledge transfer.

Within this context, the Institute for the Study of Economic Growth seeks to play a transformative role in advancing the teaching, research and application of innovative and entrepreneurial activities in a free enterprise economy to enhance societal prosperity through economic growth.

One way ISEG is pursuing this mission is by supporting and promoting research by faculty and students that is consistent with the mission and vision of the Institute for the Study of Economic Growth.

- Funds are made available annually through a grant from the Charles Koch Foundation.
- Proposals will be accepted throughout the year until all funds are allocated and will be reviewed as they are received.
- Proposals will be evaluated based on their fit with the mission of the Institute of the Study of Economic Growth.
- Appropriate uses of funds include, but are not limited to, purchasing data or other information necessary for research, funding student assistants who will participate in the research project (strongly encouraged), travel that is closely related to the project, and modest stipends for researchers.
- Recipients will be expected to present their research at an appropriate forum on the Wichita State campus, before policymakers in Kansas, or at another forum that is consistent with the ISEG mission.

Email a description of the proposed research with an estimated budget to Ted Bolema (ted.bolema@wichita.edu).